

Alice Mburu — 1:1 Call Prep

July 13, 2026 · Mixed: Recognition + Coaching · Scorecard 12/18 (flat) · Level: Mid

Opening Frame

Set tone before diving in.

"I want to start by saying you're in a good place overall. The score is flat from last period — not because anything got worse, but because the two gaps we've been talking about haven't closed yet. The strengths are real and holding. This conversation is about getting those two things across the line."

What's Working

monday.com adoption She's working the tool actively — Dr. Feigenbaum appointment tracked and done, Nahida lunch follow-up assigned, Conscious Capitalism event tasks assigned. Recognize the behavior, not the setup.

External thread handling Solace onsite (7/7): David asked in-thread, she confirmed venue and sent the invite same day. UTB ATOMIC, SIM DFW, Talent Labs, JPM AI Training rescheduling — all handled independently, cleanly.

Peer trust signal Bethany Hilton routes work directly to Alice without looping David. Alice has earned standing with internal stakeholders. Same dynamic on the Houston Texans suite thread.

Proactivity at +3 — two cycles running Podcast board subscription, Conscious Capitalism task assignments, Nahida follow-up. She's anticipating and acting.

Coaching Items

1. Verification Before Acting

"We've now had the Kevin lunch address issue come up in back-to-back review cycles — once in June, once in July. And separately, the Claude output on the shipping task was wildly off and went out without being caught. This is the one thing that can undermine everything else you're doing well. The fix is simple: before any logistics detail or AI-generated content goes to me or goes external, you check it against the source."

What you want:

- Her understanding this is a pattern, not a one-off
- Agreement on the behavior: verify address/time/cost/AI output against the original source before it leaves her hands

Success: Zero logistics corrections needed from David this cycle. If it recurs, it becomes a scored Reliability issue.

2. Email Follow-Up Loop

"I still occasionally have to ask where something stands on a thread I handed off. The EOD recap needs to be the place where I can see open threads without asking. I want an 'open items' section — any thread where a reply came in but hasn't been actioned, it lives there until it's closed."

What you want:

- Agreement to add "Open Threads / Awaiting Response" to the daily EOD recap
- She proposes what that looks like — let her own the format

Success: David doesn't have to ask about a thread status for the entire next cycle.

3. CRM — Josh Stevenson Duplicate

"There's a duplicate record for Josh Stevenson in the CRM. Find it and resolve it by end of this week. Everything else on CRM tagging looks good — you're consistent on meeting tags, which is exactly right."

What you want: Acknowledgment + committed date of July 18. If she's unsure how to merge, she finds out same day.

Success: Resolved by 7/18. Single targeted fix, not an audit.

4. Outbound Email Drafts — Route Before Send

"You've been sharing social content drafts for review, which is good. But I also want you routing email drafts — introductions you're writing on my behalf, higher-stakes coordination, follow-up drafts. I want to see those before they go out. Start with one per week."

What you want:

- Agreement: one email draft per week routed to David before send
- She names a thread this week where she'll do it first

Success: At least one draft per week routed over the next cycle.

monday.com — Align on the Workflow

"I want to make monday.com the official shared space for tasks between us — where I can see your queue, hand off items, and follow-ups live. Let's make sure we're aligned on how tasks flow."

Decisions to make:

- How does David hand off tasks? (Assign directly in monday.com, or does she pull from elsewhere?)
- What's her cadence for updating the board? (Daily? EOD?)

30-Day Targets (July 13 – August 10)

#	Commitment	Measure	Due
1	Zero logistics errors requiring David correction	David tracks any instance	Ongoing
2	EOD recap includes "Open Threads" section	Present daily by EOD	Starts today
3	Josh Stevenson CRM dupe resolved	Confirmed closed	July 18
4	One outbound email draft per week routed pre-send	Frequency count	Weekly
5	monday.com workflow conventions aligned	Both parties clear	July 20
6	Sustain CRM meeting tagging	No gaps	Ongoing

Scorecard

Dimension	Prior (7/1)	Today (7/13)	Trend
Reliability	+1	+1	Holding
Proactivity	+3	+3	Sustained
Organization	+3	+3	Sustained
Judgment	+1	+1	Holding
Communication	+1	+1	Holding
Cultural Fit	+3	+3	Sustained
Total	12/18	12/18	Flat

Path to moving Reliability and Judgment to +3: One full cycle with zero logistics errors, AI outputs verified before use, and email follow-ups closed without prompting. That's the whole game.

Things I'd Like Us to Work Towards

This isn't performance feedback — it's the horizon. Share what Senior looks like so she can start orienting toward it.

"I want to show you what the next level looks like — not because I expect it now, but because I want you to know where we're headed and start thinking about it."

What Senior EA looks like:

Strategic calendar management — not just scheduling, but understanding which meetings matter strategically and protecting time accordingly. Gatekeeping based on priority, not just availability.

Drafting memos, executive summaries, and pre-reads — going beyond scheduling confirmations into communications that carry real weight. A pre-read before a client meeting. A thread summary that gives context without David having to read the chain.

Political and organizational awareness — knowing who the key stakeholders are, how they relate to each other, and navigating on David's behalf without always being told.

Acting as a liaison — not just routing requests, but owning relationships with key contacts and driving outcomes independently.

Running the delegation loop without friction — tasks go in, tasks get done, David doesn't track them. The system runs itself.

The specific goal for next period:

"I'm going to start including you in more of my meetings. Right now I'm sharing transcripts, which helps — but I want you in the room live for certain types of calls. By the end of next period, you'll be joining select meetings to build real business context, not just read about it after the fact. That context is what makes the jump to Senior possible — you can't anticipate needs you don't understand."

Frame this as investment, not evaluation. She doesn't have a deliverable on this today.

Close

"The trajectory is good. You're operating at Mid and there are things you're already doing at Senior — the proactivity, the peer relationships, how you're working monday.com. The gap between where you are and where I want you to be is specific and fixable. Let's close it this cycle."
